THE FAITHFUL RETAINER.

Ie Was Forced to Confess That His Vener able Master Was to be Queen of the May.

The following story comes to the Listener from a Maine city, and it strikes him that for once he may break, in its behalf, the old rule never to call a story a good one before it is told:

One evening, not long ago, there was arres ed in this city an old gentleman of position and cheery habits. The policeman said he had found the old gentleman on the street very drunk. The complaint was entered against him, but, as he seemed to be able to get about, he was released on his recognizance and sent home in a hack, which he paid for with great alacrity. When his case came up in Court the only witnesses summened to prove his condition were the policeman and the old family servant of the accused, a faithful and devoted retainer. The policeman had given his testimony, which was unqualifiedly to the fact of the old gentleman's intoxication. Then the old servant was called to the stand. There was a mingled expression of indignation and determination on his countenance. He testified flatly, to the surprise of the Court-room, that the old man was sober when he came home. The Prosecuting Attorney proceeded to question.

"You say that Mr.—was sober when

"Yes, sir."
"Did he go to bed alone?"
"No, sir."
"Did you put him to bed?"

"He said, 'Good night.'"

"Any thing else?"
"He said as how I was to call him

"He said as how I was to call him early."
"Any think else?"
"Yes, sir."
"What was it? Tell us exactly what he said—every word."
"He said as now I was to wake and call him early, for he was to be Queen of the May!"
The court room reared. And in spite

The court-room roared. And in spite of the old servant's very positive testimony the accused was convicted and Enlightning a Barkeeper.

A friend told me an amusing experience the other day which illustrates the ingenuity which a man when he wants a drink very badly will exercise in order to obtain relief for his inordinate appetite. It appears that a young man approached him on the street, and telling a piteous tale of privation and woe, solicited sufficient to purchase a meal. My a piteous tale of privation and woe, solicited sufficient to purchase a meal. My friend, who is peculiarly open to these appeals, much to the detriment of his purse, gave the fellow all he had about him in charge, ten cents, telling him that would at all events keep him from starving. Seizing the mony, the man started off, and was joined by a companion who had been watching developments from a short distance, and the two made off at a round pace in earnest consultation, and were followed out of curiosity by my friend. The two entered a saloon where whisky is retailed at ten cents a glass, whisky is retailed at ten cents a glass, and the first man, throwing down his dime, called for whisky straight. Seizing the bottle, he poured out a level tumbler-ful, much to the secret indignation of the bartender, who muttered something about "taking a bath." Raising the glass to his lips, the fellow drank half the contents, when, suddenly stopping with a look of disgust, he said, "what's the matthin'," replied the knight of the white apron and the Alaska diamond headlight, "you must be off yer base; there ain't nawthin' the matter with it."

"Let me taste it," said the friend, and "Let me taste it," said the friend, and taking the glass he drained it to the dregs. "I don't see nothing the matter with it." "Well, I may be wrong," said the other, and the two were leaving the saloon when the bartender, whose anger had changed into admiration, said: "Look here, you two chaps, if ever you are herd no for a drink come in here." "Look here, you two chaps, if ever you are hard up for a drink, come in here and I'll stand treat. I've been in the business for ten years and thought I knew all the ropes, but this takes the cake." My friend was of the same opinion, and said if he had another dime in his pocket he would have bestowed it on the ingenious rogues.

He had to Give It Up.

Patiently she sat and waited for his footfall. His footfall was busy filling Patiently she sat and waited for his footfall. His footfall was busy filling engagements at other points. A tear trickled from her eye and burst into countless sparkling atoms, as it fell on the mantle which hung gracefully from her shoulders. The gaslight flickered dismally in the dim hall. She let it flicker, and heeded it not. The policeman's club struck the curbstone on the next block with a hollow sound, and she started in terror. What if—oh, sickening thought! But no—George was always fly enough to take a cab after he had finished going out with the boys.

At last he came.

"Where have you been so long, George?" she asked.

He scarcely seemed to hear her. For several minutes he stood motionless, but his lare wore a troubled expression. At length he spoke these words:

"My—hick—dear, I hash ter give it up. I've got 'er poorest mem'ry ever shaw. Ashk me shumpin' easy. I'll fin' out fer you to—hic—morrow from shom of ozher—hic—fellersh. Goodnight."

The Judge as a wantly Man.

Judge Thomas A. Moran, of Chicago, has a large family of children, of all of whom he is justly proud.

The day after he had been presented with twins he was listening to jurors' excuses, when a man who had been drawn said, mildly:

"Your Honor, I can't serve."

"Why not?" asked the court, in tones that had become stereotyped, as he looked out of the court room window.

whispered:

"My wife has just given birth to a boy, Judge."

"No excuse at all," observed the Judge, as he closed his docket with a bang; "my wife had two last sight, and I have been here all day."

The juror served.—[The Argonaut.

THE late campaign has contributed two new expressions to the American political phrasebook that are worthy of preservation on account of their oddity, if not by reason of their importance. According to Chaplain-in-Chief Colonel Shepard, a "spellbinder" is a political orator or writer who spreads such a charm over his audience or readers as to induce them to abandon Democratic truth for Republican falsehood, while a "windammer" is a spouter whose fulminations swell the heads of his hearers for the brief time of his discourse, to be deplored on the morrow along with other last night's dissipations.

A SCHIME is on foot to bond the town of Reno for $250,000 for the purpose of bringing in water from Hunter Creek and it behooves our representatives in the Legislature to look well to the West before allowing a bill of that nature to become a law. There would seem to be no necessity for placing the town so deeply in debt for water when we have a good system. No town on the coast has more good clear water, and a better system than Reno, and it certainly cannot be said to be expensive. Again we say guard the Treasury and look well to the West.

The President's Message WASHINGTON, Dec. 8 .- The President commences his message by calling attention to the fact that with the expiration of the present session of Congress, the first century of the Constitutional existence of the United States will be completed. He declares that we are admonished to inquire whether we have always closely kept in the course of safety and perpetuity. When the experiment of our Government was undertaken, the chart adopted for our guidance was the Constitution, and it is only by a strict adherence to its doctrines that we can furnish proofs to the world of the fitness of the Ameriran people for self-government. little delay as possible, a new per-The President contrasts the condi-sonal channel of diplomatic inter-The President contrasts the condition of the country a hundred years. ago with its condition to-day, and The correspondence relative to this incident will, in its due course, be days of the republic rigidly insisted upon a full compliance with the bond that the Government is under ence, by advice and counsel, with to the people; that American citi-the suffrages of American citizens, bond that the Government is under zenship shall be the only credential necessary to justify the claim of equality before the law.

powerful, and the other, the toiling and poor. We discover the existence of trusts and monopolies. The corporations are fast becoming the peoples masters, and the Government persists in exacting from the people, millions which lie dormant in the Treasury.

The Government permits many millions more to be added to the cost of the people's living, by a continuance of the tariff laws. The mass of our citizens is thus enormously burdened for the benefit of the favored, but the existing sore is injurious to the health of the entire body politic, and the grievances will surely arouse irritation and discontent. The farmers will mot fail to see that they are obliged to accept such prices for their protient res to accept such prices for their pro-duce as will be fixed and that they duce as will be fixed and that they are forced to pay enhanced prices for the things they need. Workingmen will reasonably demand through the operation of the tariff laws, the employment of cheaper means of living and for an exemption from perpetual service. Other citizens of moderate means will insist upon the justice of cheapening the cost of necessaries. The President next denounces the "combination of wealth and capital," and declare that a just and sensible revision of our tariff laws should be made for the relief of our fellow countrymen, who suffer under the present conditions, and says there is a necessity of a reduction of the revision of the revision of the revision of the relief of our fellow countrymen, who suffer under the present conditions, and says there is a necessity of a reduction of the revision of the revision of the revision of the relief of our fellow countrymen, who suffer under the present conditions, and says there is a necessity of a reduction of the revision of th a necessity of a reduction of the revenues generally, but the means by which this is to be accomplished,

The President says that Legislaions of importance were rendered tive acquiescence has encouraged the idea that the General Government is the fountain of individual needs. The postponement of ac-tion upon subjects of great public importance should arrest attention and lead to a reformation. As il-lustrations of this condition of affairs, and which need immediate action, the President mentions the crowded condition of the Supreme Court calendar; a change of the laws relating to public lands, so that their spoilation and diversion to other uses than for the homes of honest sattlers may be present. of honest settlers may be prevent-ed; plans in aid of the Indian management; the erection of one or more prisons for the confinement of United States convicts and a Postoffice building at the National Capital; a revision of the pres ent pension laws which would pon just principles and provide for needy applicants, and the appropriation of bills for the supof the Government. International questions which still await settlement are all reasonably within the domain of amicable negotiation, and there is no existing subject of dispute between the United States and any foreign power that is not suscepti ble of satisfactory diplomatic adjustment. The question between the United States and Great Britain, relating to the rights of American fishermen in Canadian waters, the Presidest regrets to say, are not satisfactorily adjusted. The President gives a review of all that ommends the treaty of Februery last, which failed to secure the ap- read by the Clerk. proval of the Senate, as a satisfactory adjustment of the difficulty, and again invokes lhe earnest attention of Congress to the subject. The offense thus committed was most grave—involving disastrous possibilities to the good relations of the United States and Great Britain, constituting a gross breach of diplomatic privilege, the invasion of purely domestic a fairs and the essential sovereignty of the Government to which the Envoy was accredited. A resolution was adopted for a committee to notify the President that the Senate is ready to receive any communication he may have to make. Messri Morrell and Saulsbury composed this committee. At 12:47 the Sen-ate took a recess for thirty minutes, which was extended to 1:30.

After recess, Holman announced that the committee appointed to wait upon the President, had performed that duty, and that the President would communicate with Congress forthwith. The Committee on Finance will begin this afternoon the hearing of representatives, of the interests affected by the tariff bill pending before the Senate. At the conclusion of recess the usual message from the House, announcing the facts of its being in session and having appointed a committee to wait upon the President, was delivered, it having been delayed in consequence of the re-cess. That was followed by a report from the committee to wait on the President, to the effect that it had performed that duty, and that the President would co nicate in writing immediately. Then the Presiden 's message was delivered, and the Secretary of the Senate proceeded to read it.

John S. Mosby's Judgment. WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 .- The Court of Claims to-day gave a judgment for $13,889 in favor of Colonel John S. Mosby, late United States Consul-General to China. This represents the fees for issuing certificates to Chinese immigrants to the United States, collected in his official capacity, and for which the accounting officers of the Treasury refused to allow him credit, Strai ed Relations. BERLIN, Dec. 3 .- The Cologne Gazette declares that the diplomatic relations between Russia and Persia threaten to become strained almost to breaking, owing to the ascendency of England in Persia. It is asserted that the Shah has refused to recognize a Russian Consul at Mesched, where an English Consul has long been stationed.

stealing wood. It occurs to this scribe that some American ought to have a chance to go for something and with the idea of giving his native countrymen a show, they are invited to take what is left before it is all gone. We think Amer-icans ought to get in somewhere.

DEATH OF ALEX. KERBY.

An Old Resident of Sierra Valley Called to the Unknown Bryond. Alex. Kerby of Beckwith died at his nome of pneumonia Saturday morning. He was here one week ago yesterday and complained of feeling unwell, but cents and $1 per bottle at Hodgkinhis friends little thought that in six days he would be dead. Mr. Kerby was well and favorably known in Western Nevada and Northern Califor-nia, where he has lived for a quarter of a century, and his sudden taking-off is deeply regretted by a host of warm personal friends. Mr. Kerby leaves a wife and seven children, with whom the Gazette deeply sympathizes. His daughter came up from below Sunday morning to attend the funeral, which took place to-day at 1 o'clock.

Dan Nully's Comedy Company. The New York News, in commenting on this excellent comedy company, which appears at the McKissick Opera which appears at the McKissick Opera House on Saturday, December 8th, says: "Daniel Sully's new play, the "Corner Grocery," produced at Tony Pastor's Theater on Monday night, has made a decided hit, and is one laugh from beginning to end. The fun is of the uproarious order, and the laughter that accompanies it is genuine. Mr. Sully invests the part of Daddy Nolan with unctuous jollity. He is well supported by Master Malvey, as the bad boy, and there is enough laugh in the piece to carry it merrily along over a summer sea of ripples."

The Genoa Courier of the 30th ult ontains the following: Thomas Raycraft, while on a drunken spree at Gardnerville last Wednesday evening, shot Martin Sarensen in the legs with a shotgun. The particulars of the affair as told to us are as follows: Raycraft had been out hunting in the vicin-Oregon and Montana wool, Spring clip, is selling at 29 cents per pound at the East.

During the Winter there is but a tri-weekly mail between Trackee and Sierra Valley.

Raycraft was arrested and brought to Genoa, and Dr. Williams was called to attend the wounded man. The Dr. says Sarenson's wounds are not not dangerous although very painful. He is a young man and a late arrival from Germany. Raycraft is in jail and will probably bave a hearing before Justice Burnham to-day. He is in the neighborhood of 35 years of age, and is a brother of the the well-known Raycraft brothers of Genoa and Carson.

"LATER ON."

The Best Comedy Company on th

Boards. On next Wednesday night Hallen & Hart will produce their great farcecomedy, "Later On," at McKissick's Opera House. The company is one of unusual merit, and Hallen & Hart are conceded to be in the first ranks of comedians. That a tremendous crowd will greet them is assured.

The Louisville Courier-Journal gives the play and the company the following notice: "Hallen & Hart's "Later On," which was given at Mason's Temple Theater last night, proved to be what was claimed for it—a farce-comedy, full of fun, and performed by an excellent company. A large and well-pleased audience witnessed the production. Fred Hallen and Joe Hart, in the principal roles, sustained their reputations as comedians, while the singing by different members of the company was unusually good. The entire cast was good. The play will be repeated to-night, and deserves a full house.

A great amount of political engineering will be done by friends of candidates to secure for their man the first place on the ticket, and the best man will probably secure the coveted place. Then if indorsed by the majority of the people, the election is assured. Electric Bitters has been put to the front, its merits passed upon, has been indorsed, and unanimously given the first place among remedies peculiarly adapted to the relief and cure of all diseases of the kidneys, liver and stomach. Heavy Fruit Shipments.

The Newcastle (Cal.) News says: By the 1st of January there will have been shipped from the town of Newcastle the present season over 10,000. 000 pounds of fruit. Many people scarcely realize what an immense quantity of fruit these figures represent. At 20 pounds to the box, there would be 500,000 boxes of fruit. At 60 boxes to the wagon-load, which would be a fair average, it would require 8,333 teams to haul the fruit to the station for shipment. Allowing 30 feet for the length of each wagon, team and traveling room, there would be a solid procession of fruit wagons over 47%

Effect of the Election on Dakota

The material effect of Harrison's election began to make itself felt in Dakota at once. In less than a week after the polls closed Eastern capital was seeking investment there. Eastern owners of prairie farms or town property have already notified their Dakota agents to advance prices from 25 to 50 per cent., while in almost every town men who had made up their minds to seek other locations have changed their plans and settled down observes with engaging candor: Bu whatever the cause of the defeat of Mr. Cleveland there can be no doubt of one fact, to wit: That every candidate opposed, berated and abused by the Magwumps in New York city was elected by overwhelming majorities. There was certainly no tariff question in the intention of the voters to the Mugwumps.

Drunkenness Declining An exchange says: There is less drunkenness in the professions nowadays than ever before in the world's history. The "Smashed" Mugwumps. The Atlanta Constitution (Dem.)

Probably no one thing has car uch a revival of trade at Hodekinson's drug store as their giving away to their customers of so many free trial bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. Their trade is sim-ply enormous in this very valuable article from the fact that it always cures and never disappoints. ACONGRESSMAN'SREVERIES

NEW YORK CITY IS WITHOUT INFLU-ENCE IN THE HOUSE.

The Political System of the Metropolis Is Fatal to Statesmanship-A Discouraging Comparison With Philadelphia What It Costs to Secure Election From

(Copyright 1888.)

The mental brightness of New Yorkers is proverbial. In one way, however, they lack the sound sense shown by Philadelphians. In her method of selecting Congressmen Philadelphia contrasts strongly with New York. Year after year the same men represent her on the floor of the House. Harmer, O'Neill and Hary Bingham are household words in Pennsylvania. A generation has passed away since Sam Randall and Pig Iron Kelly began to serve her. Each is firmly rooted in the affections of his constituents. The political leaders recognize this, and each is renominated and re-elected without opposition. Here in New York it is different. Rarely does a man serve more than two Rarely does a man serve more than two terms in Congress in succession. Sunset Cox appears to be an exception, but he is shifted from district to district like a white ball on a roulette table. Like Guenther of Wisconsin, he has become a sort of political necessity, slipping in odd places at odd times, and never reaching zero. Under the rules of the House, the real utility of a member is dependent real utility of a member is dependent upon his continuous term of service. His sphere of usefulness is limited by the importance of the Committees on which he is placed, and still further contracted by his postions on such Committees. His standing there is governed by the Chairman of the Committee, who may or may not place the committee, who may or may not place him on sub committees, or in other situations of influence and usefulness. On the floor of the House he is privileged to talk on bills reported from his own Committee, but not on those reported from other Committees except with the consent of the leaders in debate on such Com-mittees. The chairman of a Committee or his substitute divides the time allotted

All this tells against the new member and in favor of the old member. The new member, by the grace of God and of the Speaker, usually lands on insignifi-cant Committees, and is unable to open his mouth on the floor of the House, even during the consideration of bills which he the leading member of the Committee which reported them. A second term advances him a round or two on the Convances him a round or two on the Congressional ladder, but it is not until he is serving his fourth or fifth term, that he reaches a position of any commanding influence. The old members are the Chairmen of important Committees. They wield the baton of power in the Ways and Means, Appropriations, and other great Committees.

other great Committees.

This is why every Philadelphia Congressman stands head and shoulders above his New York colleagues. The New Yorkers are always Freshmen and the Philadelphians ever Seniors. The Sophomores and Juniors are few and far between. Politics has very little to do with it. By virtue of their term of service the four Republican members from Philadelphia carry more weight in a Democratic House of Representatives than the seven Democrats from New York city. Their positions on important Committees give them commanding influence in Government Departments liable to be affected by the action of such Committees. Sam Randall, arrayed in arms against his Democratic brethren on tariff legislation. really controls more patronage than all the Democratic members from Manhat-tan Island. This is because he is Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations. As such he virtually has the power to increase or to decrease general and special appropriations for any department of the Government. The speaker appoints him Chairman of the Committee because he has served continuously in the House longer than any other Democratic memgress goes, are thus shown to be far wiser than New York politicians. They recog-nize the situation at Washington, and they use it for the benefit of their city. They return their Congressmen without a struggle for even a renomination. The leaders of the political factions in New York have never sensed the situation.

In their eyes a Congressional nomination is a bauble to be traded like a string of gaudy beads among Congo negroes. It is used to pay political debts, and to satisfy the vanity of wealthy political amateurs At times the nomination is tossed as a gratuity to the Assembly District leaders. These leaders are great factors in a Congressional campaign. Each Congress dis-trict contains three Assembly districts, sional convention the leaders of the As-sembly districts represented in the con-vention meet and assess the candidate. The assessment is based upon the num-ber of election districts in each Assembly

To illustrate, take the Sixth Congress District two years ago, when Tammany and the County Democracy united on candidates. The First, Fifth and Ninth Assembly Districts are comprised in this District. After the nomination the Tammany and County Democracy Assembly District leaders, six in all, met and assessed the candidate $25 for each Election district. There were 25 Election Districts in the First Assembly district, 29 in the Fifth, and 32 in the Ninth—a total of 86 Election districts in the complete Congress district. At $32 an Election district this district. At $32 an Election district this made an assessment of $2,752. Half of this money went to the Tammany, and half to the County Democracy Assembly District leaders, the sums being apportioned according to the number of Election districts in each Assembly District. This money is supposed to be distributed among the party workers in each Election district. The assessment in the Sixth Congress District was very light. In the Eleventh Congress District it was $40 an Election district, and in some districts it ran as high as $50 and $100.

But this was not the only assessment

But this was not the only assessment levied on the candidate from the Sixth Congress District two years ago. He was assessed $750 by the County Executive Committee. The money ostensibly went for the printing, folding, and bunching of his tickets. They were bunched at County headquarters on the night before election, and distributed to the Assembly District leaders at 2 a.m. They in turn distributed them to the workers in the Election districts. This last assessment made a total of $3,502.

made a total of $3,500.

The caudidate was now entirely at the mercy of the District leaders. After getting his money, they could either bunch his tickets or throw them into a sewer, his salary for the whole term. Neither the interests of the people nor the fitness of the candidate is apparently considered.

lepth and freedom of his put

Under such a system the interests of the great city of New York are left in the hands of men from the Ocuniges, the Tombigbee, the Pascagoula and the Brazos rivers, and from the Ozark, the Cumberland and the Apache mountains, who are returned to Congress, season after season, at an expense of from $250 to $300 every two years.

Philadelphia alone of all the cities is fully awake to her interests in Congressional matters. Chicago comes next, Cincinnati comes third and Boston fourth, with New York at the tail. In no city in with New York at the tail. In the day in the Union does it cost so much to go to go to Congress as it costs from New York. The average in Philadelphia I am told is not a fourth as much. In Chicago a leading Congressman told me that his expenses were not more than $1,000 each election, and it is reasonable to suppose that it does not cost Gen. Patrick A. Collins as much as that to be returned from Boston.
Mr. Anderson, of Kansas, an old and valuable member of the House, once said that his campaign expenses had never exceeded $800 a session, and the oldest member from Georgia assures me that he has ofted escaped with less than $250.

All this teaches a pat lesson. If the New York politicians want the city to take its true position in Congress they must pattern after Philadelphia politicians. They must either send men of both brains and wealth to the House, and keep them there, or they must change the present system of nomination. As it is, no man of moderate means, however equit ped intellectually, can afford to go to Congress from this city. He is as effectually barred out as a poor man is barred from the English House of Commons. It requires more than wealth to ably represent New York in the American Congress. The man of wealth wants alertness, clear-ness of vision, studious application, pluck, patience, energy and natural ability. If he does his duty, he will work harder than he ever worked for himself, and be rewarded at the end of his term, if he wants a re-election, by an assessment that will eat up not only his entire salary, but a good portion of his income. And even at that he must serve the politicians and not his constituents.

The best evidence, however, of the stupidity of New York city politicians in their selection of Congressmen is found in the late election returns. Of the eight Congressmen elected from this city five are new members and two have not yet served a full term. A fine showing, in-deed, in a Republican House of Repre-sentatives for a city giving nearly 70,000 Democratic majority. They know better in the south and west. Texas returns all of her eleven members, Kansas sends back six out of seven, and Georgia returns nine out of ten.

. AMOS J. CUMMINGS.

Remarkable Development of the "Ready-Made" business in late years-Reason Why Garments are Cheap:

HOW TO DRESS WELL CHEAPLY.

Everybody, excepting the people who write on the subject for the newspapers, knows that the old and important question: "How much does it cost a man to dress?" is as difficult to answer as the equally old and less important one "How big is a piece of chalk?"

It costs a man just as much, or almost as little ae he chooses to spend on his clothing, and on that proposition hangs an interesting story. Twenty years ago, the average city man who felt obliged to appear well-dressed would seldom buy clothing at a "ready-made clothing store." His garments, at least his better ones, were invariably made to order. To-day many of the conspicuously well-dressed men of the metaopolis buy all, or nearly all their garments "ready-made."
While it is true that a man on the same amount of money can dress much better than formerly, it is also true, and is almost a sequitur, that he can dress as well as he did formerly on much less money, and the smallness of the sum now requir ed to fit a man with a complete suit of coat, vest, trousers, and overcoat, is most amazing to those who have not studied the question. It is difficult to grades in the infinite variety in which men dress, but it may be done approximately, and for the sake of illustration I will suppose four cases. The first is a man of comfortable means who goes into "society," dines occasionally at Delmonico's, and is a "first-nighter," but who economizes when ever he can without sacrificing appearances. He may dress so that his clothes may never be noticed by anyone (which is said to be the true test of good taste) on very little money. His evening suit will cost him from $28 to $35; his business suit will cost from $30 to $25; and his morning dress suit, or Prince Albert, will cost $24 to $28. These clothes, it is understood, will fit him as well and will last as long or nearly as long as if made to order by a first-class tailor. His overcoats will cost, say $20 for the light one, and about $25 for the heavy one.

The difference between the expense of dressing in this case and in the next one, which is that of a hardworking clerk who is compelled to make a small salary go as far as possible, is that the first man will duplicate his suits oftener, and have a duplicate his suits oftener, and have a greater variety. The latter may buy a trifle cheaper if he chooses, but he can maintain an excellent appearance by wearing clothes which will cost him as follows: a good business suit will cost him from $15 to $18; his "Sunday suit" will cost from $20 to $22, and his light overcoat would be about $15, while his winter coat would be two or three dollars more in price.

The third case supposed is that of a fairly well-to-do-mechanic who wears his working cloths ordinarily, but wants a "best suit" for "Sundays, high-days, holidays, and bon-fire nights." He may buy working suits for $12 to $14, and 'best suits" for from $17 to $20.

"best suits" for from $17 to $20.

The fourth case is that of the poor devil who has no income and no regular, employment, who is forced to be content with the cheapest garments that will keep him warm and preserve him from the appearance of a tramp. His clothes will not last long, but he can buy them for very little. An overcoat that with care will last a winter, and keep him crom suffering, may be had for $2, though he may, if he is in luck, spend as much as $10, and a full snit of coat, vest, and trousers, of approximate fit, for anything he likes or is ableto pay over $5.

These prices, that the last-named man pays, seems preposterous, but they are the figures at which very many people buy their clothing. How long the cloths will last depends on the wear they get.

FALES-CURTIS,

In the Art Gallery.

"You want to be careful of that umbrella," said an art dealer to a countryman who was indicating the fine points of a picture to his wife.

"All right, mister," responded the agriculturist, "I won't let go of that umbrel' till I git back home."—Utica Observer,

A very funny scene, of which the Rev. Dr. Howard Crosby was the central figure, occurred a few days ago in a Fourth-avenue car, New York. The doctor and some ladies had just taken their seats when a man who was considerably under the influence of liquor boarded the car and sat down opposite them. His conduct soon became rather boisterous, and two men who sat new by began to swear at him and threaten to put him off. This naturally did not improve matters, and Dr. Crosby, soeing that the ladies were becoming frightened, signaled the two sober men to stop their tantalizing, while he went over and sat down beside the drunkard. After the minister had spoken a few words in the fellow's ear he stopped his noise, and the doctor went back to his seat. For nearly a mile further the man traveled without causing the least disturbance, and then Dr. Crosby sur that he wanted to get out. He signaled to the conductor and the car stopped. The drunken man rose from his seat, but before going out turned toward his late tormentors with a most horrible frown, and then stepped over to Dr. Crosby, while over his face spread a maudlin, idiotic grin. Patting the minister on the shoulder two or three times, he said in a very audible tone, "You'sh a good feller. I guess you know how tis'h yourself."

The doctor told that story to a party of gentlemen a day or two ago with a

The doctor told that story to a party of gentlemen a day or two ago with a great deal of relish, and said it was the best proof of sympathy that he had ever experienced. He followed it up with the following, which happened several

the following, which happened several years ago:

A pisca orial friend sent him a huge and palatable-looking salmon, the receipt of which greatly delighted the good doctor's heart. In his generosity he straightway invited half a dozen gourmand friends to share his good fortune and help dispose of the fish. Dinner time came, with all the guests on hand, and they adjourned with great anticipations to the table. For the second course the salmon was served, and every course the salmon was served, and every man's mouth watered. The doctor served the dish, and they all fell upon it. The first gestleman who took a mouthful stopped suddenly, his face turned pale, and with a quick movement he raised his napkin to his mouth. The host noticed it, as did the other guests, but too late.

noticed it, as did the other guests, but too late.

Astonishment was seen in every muscle of Dr. Crosby's face, when a sharp ring at the door bell announced an arrival. It was a boy with a letter from the donor of the salmon, who stated that it was the finest specimen that he had ever caught, and, as he knew Dr. Crosby was connected with the Museum of Natural History, he had taken the liberty of preserving it in alchohol, and—Dr. Crosby has never yet had the courage to read the rest of that letter, but all the guests present, with their numbers augmented by the person of the donor of that fish, soon ate a dinner at the doctor's house for which that reverend gentleman paid in hard cash.

An Awkward Mistake

A clubman relates at his own expense the following reminiscence of his visit to London last Summer. Wishing to take advantage of the alleged cheapness of clothing in London he carried with him no more than he actually needed for the voyage, and on his arrival he posted up to London in his shabby steamer dress to find an important dinner engagement awaiting him, only a few days off. It was an extremely hot day, and he was tired, but he went at once to the establishment of a tailor who had been recommended, and asked to see the proprietor, Mr. X. That gentleman appeared, and the following conversation ensued:

"You are Mr. X?" asked the American. "Yes." "I met your customer, Mr. A., on the steamer I have just landed from, and he advised me to come and see you before looking anywhere else," said the American.

"But really, my man," the tailor said, looking the travel-stained visitor over from head to foot, "I am awfully sorry not to oblige Mr. A., don't you know, at present."

The American was neither vain nor lacking in a sense of the ludicrous, so that instead of becoming mortally offended, as many might have done, he simply ed, as many might have done, he wanted footing he was at once treated with a consideration designed to atone for so awkward a mistake.

"Giants in Those Days."

Pliny mentions the giant Gabbara, who was nine feet nine inches tall, and two other giants, Poison and Secundilla, who were half a foot taller.

Garpolus tells of a young giantess who was ten feet high.
Lecat speaks of a Scotch giant eleven feet six inches in height.
A giant eight feet high was exhibited at Rouen in 1755.

A Swedish peasant, cited by Buffon, was eight feet and eight lines in height, and the stature of the Finnish giant tujanus was the same, while Frederick William, King of Prussia, had a guard of pearly governed to the status of the same of the sam nearly equal stature. The giant Gille de Trent, in the Tyrol, and one of the guards of the Duke of Brunswick, was more than eight feet four inches in height. The Grecian giant Amanab, now eighten years old, is seven feet eight inches three inches.

The Austrian giant, Winckelmeier, who was recently exhibited in Paris, measuring eight and one-half feet, may be regarded as a specimen of the highest stature attained by the human species.

At the opposite extremes may be found numerous dwarfs not more than twenty inches, and some even as little as sixteen and even twelve inches in height; but such dwarfs are only monsters with atrophied limbs, whose age is usually exaggerated by their Barnums.
